

An object in the work "Score for a longer conversation" by Bård Breivik

The universal artistic rights are not to protect a culture, but to protect the individual who wants to enhance, modify or destroy it by her aesthetic or intellectual capability

